S&W

The story of SSTF: the people, involved, from the beginning. A big personal/humor spread

SSTF Website - "If you have material to put up just email it to me." Saadia - safirs@rpi.edu

Membership

There will be an email signup at Face The Waste; everyone who signs will get one email: a Thank You, who the winners of raffle are and information and links to the campus sustainability organizations.

IDEA: After thought about how joining SSTF and the commitment to projects is for new people: the creation of a physical system of name tags would make actions more tangible and be an incentive for new members to come and work on or start projects. Placement of name tags on a board of active projects creates a tangible commitment, and acts as an attendance mechanism.

Sustainability Calendar - Using Google Calendar

Will allow ease of visibility for groups doing smaller green events

Organization and public visibility of large events is made easier by the general public being able to add Sustainability events to their private calendars.
(A personal calendar which is subscribed gets updates on current events)

Calendar Manager - Anasha - cummia@rpi.edu

To aid in the creation of IWSTF we should "practice what the office is supposed to be doing".

Budget

The budget for cube construction in Face the Waste is free to use because we already have cubes from last year.

SSTF Budget - When the Senate budgets next year SSTF will submit a budget for events and capital projects.

SSTF has an article coming out in Inside Rensselaer
